Pastors' Page

Pastor John De Young

October is the month of the Reformation. So ... now what? I mean, we are one year out from the 500 year of the Reformation and things are even looking bleaker for the "Church" today than it did last year. Yes, pastors will preach on the message of the Reformation (hopefully), but is the Reformation even relevant anymore?

Let's review: Many will tell the exciting story of Luther nailing the Ninety-five Theses on the door of the Castle church in Wittenberg. He had definitely challenged the church of his day by raising the banner of the Reformation. But the only problem with that understanding is that it really wasn't all that exciting at the time. Luther had no intention of starting the Reformation. He was simply inviting the other priests and scholars of his day to discuss some sentences - the Theses - dealing with the nature of the living one's Christian faith and addressing certain errors or abuses that had crept into the practice of the church.

The troubles Luther saw seemed to deal with the bureaucratic "church" and "pope". There were bad teachings and worshipping life in the church. But the Reformation was God's idea, not Luther's. The broad public interest in Luther's theses was unexpected, and not always just theological. Some printers translated Luther's theses from the Latin to the common language of German and printed out multiple copies. They saw the controversial nature of what Luther had written and gambled that people would enjoy reading what Luther had to say. Needless to say, they were right.

Soon, the little debate began to interfere with the cash-flow of the capital campaign of the church in Rome for St. Peter's Basilica. The scholar's debate was now a public controversy, and a stumbling block in the path of the "stewardship program" of the Catholic church. Church leaders and Indulgence Peddlers began to see a decline in revenue which led to a debate about: what is the Gospel? How does forgiveness work? What is the source of authority for proper teaching? People began to understand that the "Theses" questioned the fundamentals of the faith. This debate rose to the very highest levels in the Holy Roman Catholic Church itself. People began to choose up sides. Suddenly, we had a Reformation movement on our hands!

Oh, sure, there were others that tried to reform the Roman church before Luther, but their voices were snuffed out by being burned at the stake. But God had a hand in preventing that this time. The Reformation did not spring fully-formed into existence in a day or a week. It consumed the life of Martin Luther from 1517 to 1546. After his death, it was nearly destroyed by men who wanted peace above all else (Melancthon), and other men who were willing to kill thousands of people to silence Lutheran theology. Faithful Lutheran Pastors finally collected all the important documents of the Lutheran teachings and published our confession in The Book of Concord of 1580.

Many men and women died for daring to be Lutheran (which was not just a slogan on a Tee-shirt back then). The Thirty Years War was fought over the right to be a Lutheran if that was your faith. Animosity between Lutherans and Catholics lasted for a while because Lutherans had remembered how the Catholics had butchered their relatives and suppressed their religion during that long conflict. When it was over, rulers still controlled what religion was permitted in their lands, and if the ruler changed his religion, he or she would force everyone else in their kingdom to change too. Many of the founders of the Missouri Synod fled to America because the ruler of Prussia decided that Lutherans and other non-Lutheran Protestants all had to join into one church body and use the same liturgies and sing the same hymns and teach the same religious doctrines under penalty of law, and it was not Lutheran doctrine that he supported.

The Reformation is still going on today. Some "Lutherans" want to imitate the Protestants around us and be generic Christians, forgetting those things that marks us as distinctively Lutheran and which connect us to the Church throughout history. Others want to return to "Holy Mother Church" either in doctrine and practice, or by surrendering our denomination entirely and simply going home to Rome. Liberation theologians have overwhelmed some church bodies, like the ELCA, and want to make Lutheranism all about "social justice" and focus our aspirations on simply improving (as they define improvement) life in the here and now. Then there are those who, like me, want the Lutheran church to return to the foundation of Lutheran doctrine, and practice consistent with what we believe, teach, and confess, and stand united once again in the mainstream of the historic Christian faith and confession.

We are not really trying to reform the Catholic church any longer. Some people are, but their goals are different than a Lutheran's would be, and the Roman Church has proven itself to be pretty resistant to changing their doctrine.

Our goal is not really to reform the Protestant ranks either. They are welcome to the truth, and they are invited to join us at any time, but they have their own agendas, and stepping backwards (as they would perceive it) to the authority of the Word of God, to the creeds and to the historic liturgy is not all that inviting to them. Having no doctrinal foundation as a touchstone has served the ambitious among them for far too long to be tied down to something as mundane as the truth.

Our reformation is ours. Like Luther, we are calling to any and to all who are interested in standing on God's truth back to the Word of God. In a world where bigger is generally accepted to be better, we are about the truth of God's Word and the consistent confession of the faith in all that we do and say. The church usually gets in trouble when it focuses on size, or on income, or on public approbation. Even when we focus on something as essential sounding as "missional", we tend to do the sorts of things that do not serve us well. Our focus needs to be on the Gospel, which is to say, the Word of God, which is also to say, on Jesus Christ.

What I need is forgiveness, and a church that proclaims it to me honestly. I need the sort of place that encourages me with the truth, and doesn't try to entertain me or meet my "felt needs", but shows me my sin and then brings me to God's grace and fills me up with His gifts. I need to be taught about reality as it is, not as it would be if I had my way. I need to know about God and how He works and what His will for me is like. I need to be reminded to pray, because prayer only comes easily to me when I am in trouble or danger of some sort that I feel and dread. The true danger, the danger of sin, doesn't frighten me until it is too late to turn back. I need regular reminders.

I also need to be reminded of my duty to my neighbor. Selfishness is the easiest thing in the world. The only time being generous feels good to me is when someone is watching and I am getting all the credit and praise. When it makes me feel good about myself, or causes others to admire me, then generosity I can afford is pleasing to do. The sort of generosity that actually costs me something dear, however, is not fun or natural, particularly if no one is noticing that it is being done by me! It is only really possible when I remember the love of God for me and the price of His generosity in forgiving me and saving me. The reformation that we need is the reformation that holds Christ and His cross before our eyes - and not just to make us feel good, but to remind us who it is that we are following - and where we are going.

We also need to keep an eye on the church around us, doing our part to keep it on the foundation of God's Word and not merely human opinions about God's Word. It is far too easy to lose one's focus and wander away into self-made religious ideas. The church has been doing that for two thousand years, over and over again. Celebrating the Reformation of Luther's time helps us keep that task in mind.

School Report

We would like to thank everyone who has helped with the Back to School Cleaning. The school is looking better than ever.

We are blessed with daily calls from parents looking for a place for their children. Along with school we started Wednesday Chapel which the children enjoy. Please keep collecting the Box Tops for Education as well as printer ink cartridges for the school. Grand Parents day was August 31 and the children loved having their grandparents here. Out next big event will be Thanksgiving lunch with parents.

Please remember us in your prayers.

Board of Elders

Greetings in the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ! At the time I write this article, the sad news has arrived that Gary Lee, a long time member here, has passed away. Yet, when I think of Gary, it is difficult to really be sad. First, and foremost, I know he was a Christian who had faith in Jesus Christ. Therefore, I know that, based on our Savior's sacrifice, he will overcome death.

Second, my memories of Gary only make me smile. He was always happy and quick with a joke or quip. I am sure that those of you who knew him have a very similar memory. If you asked Gary how he was doing, he would say something like, I am “finer than frog hair.” Of course, frog hair is very, very fine indeed. When others are asked the same question, they will say, like Martin Luther supposedly did, “better than I deserve.” While that is certainly true, I don’t think it conveys the joy we Christians should have and display. And that was a good word (“joy”) to apply to Gary—he was fully of joy.

Our Synod president, Matthew Harrison, has prepared a booklet which contains a message to the Church about the challenges we face and how to face them. It is entitled “Joyfully Lutheran.” The theme verse is from 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18, which states, in part, “Rejoice always, . . . , for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you.” He also cites numerous other passages in the Bible that reference joy, such as:

- ♦ Joy in and over creation (Ps. 96)
- ♦ Joy in God’s presence (Ps. 16:11)
- ♦ Joy in repentance (Luke 15:6)
- ♦ Joy over salvation (Luke 10:2))
- ♦ Joy over life’s simple pleasures and gifts (Eccl. 5:18-19; 11:8)
- ♦ Joy in worship (Ps. 122)
- ♦ Joy in prayer (Rom. 12:12)
- ♦ Joy in generous giving (2. Cor. 8 -9)
- ♦ Joy in the resurrection, Christ is risen! (Matt. 28:6, Mark 16:6, Luke 24:6)

Perhaps the greatest joy—God rejoices in you (Zeph. 3:17-18). In short , the message today and every day is to have joy in being a Christian and a member of Cross of Christ Lutheran Church. We have so much to be joyful about here.

Peace be with you!
Tom

From the President

My brothers and sisters in Christ, last week I announced Cross of Christ faces two particular challenges. Both are centered around stewardship. For those that missed this announcement, I offered that your council promised above all to remain transparent to our congregation. To that end, I reported that our typical summer months remain particularly challenging. Unfortunately our giving is behind schedule and we are consequently behind with some payments. We look forward to regaining momentum in the coming months and ask that each of you prayerfully consider your individual giving opportunities. We will be providing a more in depth summary of our financial situation at our next voter’s meeting, so please make plans to attend.

The second issue is of equal, if not more, concern and involves our Sunday School. My brothers and sisters in Christ, we are at a crossroad with respect to our Sunday School. Our faithful teachers’ terms are up in December and we, as yet, have no replacements. I believe there is no greater stewardship than teaching our children. So I ask each of you to carefully and prayerfully consider sharing your talents by teaching one of our children’s Sunday School classes. I know you will be enriched by the opportunity, but am equally certain our precious children will benefit greatly by your commitment.

Yours in Christ, Dan

DOW

Recently, a missionary friend brought Disciples of the Way some Bibles in the Arabic language that speak to the needs of Muslims who are open to learning more about Jesus in the Bible. These Bibles have been met with much enthusiasm and curiosity by our refugee neighbors from all nations here in Dallas, at Vickery Meadows, the home of 35,000+ refugees. In order to continue and grow the Kingdom of God and placing the Word of Christ into their hands, we humbly and urgently are asking for more copies. The original Bibles received were published overseas; DOW is now working to print and publish these Bibles here in the US.

DOW prayerfully asks for your help to ensure there is a Bible for every Arabic-speaking person who expresses interest in learning more about Christ. While there are apps available that have Arabic translations, Muslims believe that the Word became a book (the holy Quran) and dwelt among us. Therefore they need a physical book (the Bible) to communicate the authenticity of Christ as the Word of God who dwelt among us in the flesh. As DOW seeks to "make disciples of all nations" (Matt. 28:19), providing our Muslim refugee neighbors with the Word of God is indispensable as they continue to "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (2 Peter 3:18).

When people from all nations read the Bible in their own language, it shows that God truly is the God of "all tribes and peoples and languages" (Rev. 7:9) and that He sent His Son to save every one of us, no matter our ethnic heritage.

LUTHERANS FOR LIFE TO CELEBRATE 40 YEARS

By Caitlin Magness

Registration is open for the 2018 Lutherans For Life (LFL) National Conference, to be held Oct. 12–13 in St. Louis.

Under the theme “From Age to Age the Same” (Isaiah 46:3–4), speakers will present on a variety of issues touching on every stage of human life, including the abortion pill, suicide awareness and prevention, sexuality and gender identity, death, grief and end-of-life care.

LFL Executive Director Rev. Michael Salemink says, “I’m very much looking forward to the life-minded fellowship of our national conference. We’re going to share worship, interaction, encouragement and education with hundreds of Gospel-motivated Lutherans. We’ll be celebrating Lutherans For Life’s fortieth year ... as we recognize how God’s grace prevails in every age of history and every age of life.”

Conference highlights will include:

Worship at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Olivette, Mo. Immanuel is also the conference site.

Tours of Concordia Publishing-House, the LCMS International

Center and historic Trinity Lutheran Church in St. Louis.

A banquet with keynote address delivered by the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Nafziger, former director of the LCMS Commission on Theology and Church Relations.

Plenary addresses from the Rev. Dr. James I. Lamb and the Rev. Edward Fehskens III, both former LFL executive directors, and the Rev. Dr. Dale A. Meyer, president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis. Tours of Semisaurus, a mobile creation museum.

An all-day children’s workshop on Oct. 13, with activities designed to teach children about life issues such as prenatal development and disability awareness.

In addition, pianist and former Life Team Leader Dr. Mark Lavery will perform a pre-conference recital at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Olivette, at 7:00 p.m. on Oct. 11. The recital is free and open to the public.

Conference registration is $125 for adults attending the entire conference ($60 and $90 for only Friday or Saturday, respectively), $50 for students and $25 for children ages 6 to 12. Children 5 and under attend free.
