1. How do people typically define who they "are?" Is this in their own view of themselves or in someone else's view of them?
2. How does that definition shape how they act? Can you think of examples...
3. In whose view are the defining terms for a believer ("chosen of God, holy, loved" - v. 12)? Why does this matter?
4. How does this specifically impact a believer's behavior? How has it impacted yours?
5. How do these "put on's" result in unity among believers? What other effects do they have (for you, for God, for others)?
