APRIL 2016

"To God be the Glory!" (1 Peter 4:11)

GREETINGS IN THE NAME OF JESUS, OUR RISEN LORD AND SAVIOR!

Even though we live in a sinful world which causes us to face challenges, struggles, and heartaches, we, who have been redeemed by Christ, are joyful people. As recipients of God's love, grace, and mercy, we can in the most difficult times find God's strength, peace, comfort, and even joy. God doesn't want us to stay in a state of despair or gloom. If we continually focus on what's wrong in the world or even in our own lives, we are causing our sorrow and unhappiness. If our appearances radiate the joy of the Lord, others will be drawn to Him as well. As the Apostle Paul learned to be content in all circumstances, we can find that same contentment and even joy in the circumstances that we encounter (Phil. 4:10-13).

St. Augustine, one of the great theologians in church history, wrote, "Every man, whatsoever his condition, desires to be happy." Where do we look for happiness? There are two paths. Perhaps the most popular path for seeking happiness is through the accumulation of things, which can lead to temporary happiness but ultimately ends in despair and death. The path on accumulating things of the world is a very appealing path. It's a path that focuses on getting more and more. It's a path that seeks power and prestige, which people mistakenly assume leads to ultimate happiness and security. The way of the world is centered on ourselves. It's about immediate gratification. It's about getting, taking, and hoarding. It's about an appetite for things that is never satisfied. It's about what you want now, such as a job, house, vacation, promotion, money, etc. This path ends up in abusing people and won't bring long-term happiness.

The other path is God's path, which leads to sustainable happiness and life that is truly life (1 Tim. 6:19). God's path is a radically different way. It's filled with love and compassion. The focus isn't on getting more and better things but on the Creator of these things. It's about faith that enables us to understand that God is the provider of all our good gifts and then expressing our thanks to Him through our words and deeds. We seek God's guidance and direction for our lives. Through faith, we live our lives to please and serve Him by serving others. In contrast to the world's path of getting, God's path is centered on serving and giving. It's in our serving and giving that we find true joy. Our happiness doesn't come from what we have but who we are in Jesus.

Lou Holtz said to a graduating class,
"If you want an hour of happiness, eat a steak;
if you want a day of happiness, golf;
if you want a week of happiness, go on a cruise;
if you want a month of happiness, buy a new car;
if you want a lifetime of happiness, put your faith in Jesus!"

Together in Christ,

Sharing, Believing, Living, Caring

Living Generously

The purpose of this newsletter is to share God's Word so that our members will better understand who we are to be and what we are to do in the light of the Scriptures. It is our hope that this monthly publication will help you grow in your relationship with the Lord and as a Christian steward.

God is Faithful—Trust Him

God alone is trustworthy unlike anyone or anything in life. The Apostle Paul wrote, "He Who calls you is faithful..." (Thessalonians 5:24). With the people in Corinth, Paul shared these words, "God is faithful, and He will not let you be tempted beyond your ability, but with the temptations He will also provide the way of escape, that you may be able to endure it" (1 Corinthians 10:13).

Temptations come in many forms. For many, the temptation to find self-worth in career and accomplishments is very strong. Along with that comes the temptation to prove that we are worthy of respect because of how much money we have or what we own. Some waste many years following this trail, forgetting the God Who gives our gifts, provides opportunities for us to use them, and grants us success by His grace.

But how fulfilled we are, how God can use us in His kingdom, how we can glorify Him when we trust Him with all aspects of our lives! When we dedicate our work to His glory, He gives us joy and satisfaction. When we give our firstfruits to Him and share our abundance with others, He is faithful to provide for all our needs. Then we trust in "God, Who richly provides us with everything to enjoy..." We can do His good works, "storing up treasures for [ourselves]...so that [we] may take hold of that which is truly life" (1 Timothy 6:17-19).

Obedying God

As the Holy Spirit works within us through God's Word and Sacraments, we can obey even when it seems to go against our own experience and judgment. We find an example of this in the book of Luke. "When He [Jesus] had finished speaking, He said to Simon, 'Put out into deep water, and let down the nets for a catch.' Simon answered, 'Master, we've worked hard all night and haven't caught anything. But because You say so, I will let down the nets'" (Luke 5:4-5). Peter obeyed, even though he felt that to go out into deeper water to find fish would be foolish. Peter obeyed, and, through his obedience, God blessed him and others with more fish than they ever thought possible.

Jesus has the same power for miracles in our lives. He will look to us for faithful obedience. He expects it of His children!

Sometimes obedience simply requires waiting. More often, though, it seems that we are asked to make a move of some kind, such as:

- Noah picked up a hammer (Genesis 6).

- Moses climbed a mountain (Exodus 24).
- Joshua marched around Jericho seven days in a row (Joshua 6).
- Rahab hung a scarlet cord out her window (Joshua 2).

At times, the things the Lord asks us to do appear foolish to us, as they did to Naaman (2 Kings 5), and sometimes they're simple, as with the crippled beggar (Acts 3:7-8). Then, again, sometimes they're acts of great courage, as in the case of Stephen (Acts 6-7).

Once the life of Christ has been implanted in us through His redemption, we will recognize God's right to absolute authority over us. "In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He will make your paths straight" (Proverbs 3:6). Hearing and reading God's Word will take on new meaning and significance. God is not a taskmaster, but rather desires that we submit willingly to His authority. A willingness to obey God's will is essential for knowing God's will.

Through His work on the Cross, Christ has lived the perfect life of obedience in our places. His obedience was complete, including death on that Cross. That obedience gives us hope, strength, and life. Paul tells us in Romans 5:19, "For as by the one man's [Adam] disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the one man's [Jesus] obedience the many will be made righteous." It is Christ's perfect obedience that makes our obedience holy and acceptable to the Lord. Apart from a close relationship with Him, any attempts at obedience will fail. God's presence gives us the strength we need to be obedient. Through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, we can obey.

On the Lighter Side

When Lou Holtz was the coach of the Notre Dame football team, there was a banquet before a big Saturday football game. During the banquet, the spokesman for the opposing team said, "Well, we know that Jesus doesn't care who wins the football game on Saturday." When it was coach Holtz's turn to speak, he said, "Well, Jesus may not care who wins the game, but we certainly know that His mother Mary cares who wins!"

Long, long ago, an Indian chief named Fallen Rock walked away from his tepee and into the woods. He was never seen again.

The tribe looked and looked for him to no avail. Years and years past by with no sighting of Chief Fallen Rock.

To the day, people are still on the hunt for the chief. The highway department even placed many signs along the highways saying, "Watch for Fallen Rock!"

Made Stewards by God's Grace

"Grace inspires what the Law demands. The Law prescribes good works, but only grace can produce them. While the Law directs, the Gospel alone delivers. Gratitude, generosity, honesty, compassion, acts of mercy and self-sacrifice, these things spring unsummoned from a forgiven heart."
(Rev. Tullian Tchividian)

SERVING OTHERS

Jesus said, "The Son of Man came not to be served, but to serve" (Matt. 20:28). Though He was/is a king, Jesus put aside the rights of a king to become like common man, to become a servant. He asks no less of us than we serve others as He has served us. The writer of Hebrews tells us that we are called and enabled to "serve the living God" (Heb. 9:14). We served God by serving others. When Jesus was asked, "When did we see a stranger and welcome You, or naked and clothe You?" Jesus replied, "Truly, I say to you, as you did to one of the least of these My brothers, you did for Me" (Matt. 25:40).

Mother Teresa would offer a resounding "amen" to these thoughts. "Unless life is lived for others," she said, "it is not worthwhile." As a young nun she developed a burning desire to work with the homeless and hopeless. Although she was convinced of this calling, her superiors suggested her youth and inexperience would cause her to fail in such an endeavor. Mother Teresa was, therefore, assigned to teach at a convent in India.

Mother Teresa's mission to serve others unable to meet their own needs burned deep in her heart. Finally, at age 39, she was allowed to pursue her passion in poverty-stricken Calcutta. On her first day, she encountered a man lying in the gutter, so covered with disease and insects that everyone avoided him. Mother Teresa knelt down next to him and began cleaning his infected body. He was so astounded by her caring, he asked her, "Why are you helping me?" Mother Teresa smiled and replied, "Because I love you."

When service opportunities present themselves to us, may we be ready and available to love and serve others in Jesus' name.

HEALTH NEWS

Not your Grandfather's Prunes

You may already know that prunes (now branded as dried plums) help with digestion to lessen constipation or other digestive issues, but you may not know about the other healthful benefits of dried plums that can aid your health no matter your age.

Overall, dried plums are a nutrient-rich food with the potential to lower your risk for heart disease, osteoporosis, Type 2 diabetes, and obesity.

Eating just four prunes provides you with . . .

. . . 12 percent of the daily value for fiber. (Each prune contains about 1 gram of fiber.) Fiber makes you feel fuller longer to help you avoid snacking. Approximately half of the fiber is soluble fiber to help maintain healthful cholesterol levels. The other half is insoluble fiber which helps promote regular bowel movements.

. . . 32 percent of the daily value for vitamin K. Vitamin K is necessary for building strong bones and assisting with blood clotting.

. . . 9 percent of the daily value for potassium. Potassium helps lower blood pressure, and it also keeps your nerves and muscles working properly.

. . . 6 percent of the daily value for vitamin A. Vitamin A aids in vision in low light and also promotes a healthful immune system.

In addition, the antioxidant content of dried plums is roughly twice the amount found in raisins and fresh blueberries, four times the amount in fresh strawberries, and six times the amount in fresh plums.

Shingles Primer

If you are an older adult, perhaps you have seen the commercials on TV urging you to get the shingles vaccine to avoid the pain and discomfort associated with shingles. You may want to consider that advice. According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), nearly 1 out of 3 people in the United States will develop shingles during their lifetime.

Shingles is a skin rash caused by the same virus that causes chickenpox. After a person recovers from chickenpox, the virus stays dormant in the body and can reactivate years later and cause shingles. In most shingles cases, a cause for the virus reactivating is never known.

For most people who develop shingles, it starts with several days of burning pain and sensitive skin before a rash is even visible. Then small blisters on a red base of skin start to form – with new blisters forming for about 3 to 5 days. Eventually, the blisters pop and the area begins to crust over and heal. For some, they experience the burning pain, but blisters never appear. The duration of the outbreak usually lasts 3 to 4 weeks.

Shingles is contagious and can be spread to babies, children, or adults who have not had chickenpox. They won't actually get shingles, but they will get chickenpox. Once you have had chickenpox, you cannot catch shingles from someone else, but you still could develop shingles if the dormant chickenpox virus reactivates in your body.

The risk of shingles increases as you get older, and the CDC recommends that if you are age 60 or older, you should get vaccinated against shingles.

Healthful Habits to Be Well

Drink Water

Drink more water throughout the day to stay hydrated, but also to lessen calories. Quite often the hunger pains you feel are really signs of dehydration. Grabbing a glass of water will prevent you from reaching for a snack. Water also fills you up keeping you from overeating: Virginia Tech researchers found that people who drank two glasses of water right before a meal ate 75 - 90 fewer calories than those who didn't.

Down-Size Your Dishes

Eating off of a smaller plate can help with portion control and help you to eat fewer calories. Since the 1900s, the size of a normal American dinner plate has become at least 25% larger. In the 1960s, plates were roughly 9 inches in diameter. In the 1980s, they were around 10 inches. By the year 2000, the average dinner plate was 11 inches. Now, it's not unusual to find dishes that are 12 inches in diameter or larger. Visually, we like a plate full of food. As a result, we heap on bigger portions to fill the plate and end up consuming more calories.

Sleep More

Lack of sleep may cause you to eat more. According to a Mayo Clinic study, people ate 549 more calories on the days after they slept 60-80 fewer minutes than they normally sleep. Other research shows that sleep deprivation increases the body's production of a hunger-stimulating hormone and also decreases the amount of an appetite-suppressing hormone.

Whole Grains Reduce Diabetes Risk

Whole grains reduce the risk of Type 2 diabetes, according to a study of nearly 43,000 male health professionals. The men who ate three or more servings of whole grains a day were 40% less likely to develop diabetes over the next 12 years than those who rarely ate whole grains. Even obese men at the greatest risk for diabetes benefited from whole grains. The study also noted that refined grain products, such as white bread and pasta, did not reduce the risk.

Whole-grain foods include cereals and breads, oats, and brown rice. When buying bread as a source of whole grains, the phrase "whole-wheat flour" should appear at the top of the ingredients list, and there should be 2 or 3 grams of fiber per slice.

Limit Your Walk in a Flip-Flop

Flip-flops are a popular footwear, but spending too much time in them may cause foot or even knee injuries. That's because flip-flops can cause you to slightly "clench" your toes to keep them on your feet. That "clench" stiffens your foot, and that's not a natural position. Having that constant foot tension can alter your gait, eventually causing foot pain such as plantar fasciitis; it could also lead to knee pain.

That doesn't mean you have to avoid flip-flops all-together. "If you have to walk more than, say, 10 blocks, you want to wear regular shoes," says Doug Kechijian, D.P.T., doctor of physical therapy at Peak Performance in New York City. "But if you're just walking down to the beach or hanging out at a barbecue, flip-flops aren't going to cause any real problems."

A better option is to find a sandal with a strap that completely wraps around your heel so that you don't have to "clench" your toes.

If you insist on constantly wearing flip-flops, make sure that the toe area bends. If that area is too stiff, that can also negatively impact your gait.

Will Rogers on growing older....

"Eventually you will reach a point when you stop lying about you age and start bragging about it."

"The older we get, the fewer things seem worth waiting for in line for."

"You know you are getting old when everything either dries up or leaks."

"I don't know how I got over the hill without getting to the top."

"You have to wait until evening to see how splendid the day has been."

A Man's thoughts on growing older....

George Goldtrap of Ormond-by-the-Sea, FL, passed on these observations from an elderly gentleman:

"Now that I'm older, here's what I've discovered:

- "My wild oats have turned into prunes & All-Bran."
- "It's easier to get older than it is to get wiser."
- "Some days you're the dog; some days you're the fire hydrant."
- "When I'm finally holding all the cards, why does everyone decide to play checkers?"
- "If God wanted me to touch my toes, He would have put them on my knees."
- "These days I spend a lot of time thinking about the hereafter. I go somewhere to get something and then I wonder what I'm here after."
