Once upon a pew: In one of my early efforts at holding a protracted meeting in a rural area of Mississippi, the services were being interrupted by loud talking outside the building one night. Instead of dealing with the situation in such a way as to provoke more interference, I said, "Listen fellows, we have some brethren who are accustomed to taking a nap during services, and if you don't quit talking so loud you are going to wake them up." Laughter was heard outside and there was no further problem during the meeting. ~Life Humor, and Biblical Briefs by J.A. McNutt.
